LIBRARIES OF STEVENS COUNTY
LEGACY PROJECT
PRESERVING THE PAST • FORGING THE FUTURE

Rural public libraries are more than a place to check out books, they are a gathering spot where people work on projects, take classes, attend storytimes, build their businesses, learn new skills, and access information. Libraries are essential for supporting healthy, vibrant, informed communities and are an investment in our future generations of thinkers, doers, and leaders.

Yet today, our Stevens County libraries are too small and can't meet modern demands for technology, accessibility, and collaborative meeting spaces. Lack of space and outdated infrastructure are barriers to meeting the needs of our communities. Our local tax dollars are enough to keep the doors open, but not enough to renovate or build new facilities.

Fortuitously, we have an unprecedented opportunity to expand our local libraries and increase access to library resources for every resident. In 2019, the Washington Legislature created the Library Capital Improvement Program (LCIP) to help upgrade library buildings in rural areas. This is the first time the state has ever appropriated funds for public libraries.

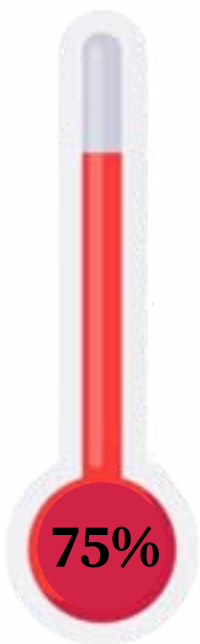

The Libraries of Stevens County submitted competitive grant proposals for four projects, totaling $2 million, to build a new library in Loon Lake and renovate existing libraries in Northport, Chewelah, and Colville. Incredibly, all four grants were awarded, for a total State contribution of $1 million, with a required dollar for dollar local match of $1 million.

The planned building improvements will provide meeting rooms, co-working spaces, and current technologies that will create new opportunities to spur economic development, support early literacy, promote lifelong learning, and offer Stevens County residents of all ages access to the information and skills needed to succeed.

Unfortunately, COVID put everything on hold for two years and inflation has increased costs substantially since the initial proposals were submitted in 2020. With the addition of the necessary building accessories that are not covered by the LCIP grants (e.g., HVAC renovations, furniture, shelving, interactive children's materials), the total projected cost is now $4.7 million.

We're already making progress! Stevens County received a $1.74 million grant for the new Loon Lake Library, and the Library Foundation received a $300,000 Congressional appropriation. In addition, the volunteer Friends Groups and the Colville Library Improvement Club have, so far, raised close to $200,000 and the City of Colville has appropriated $380,000.

Now we need your help! Though we have made great progress in raising over 70% of the required funds, we still need to raise $1,000,000 to complete these exciting projects. By providing these additional necessary funds you can be a part of a legacy that will transform our communities. Every dollar is valuable and needed. Together we will create a legacy that benefits everyone in Stevens County for generations to come.

The time for impact is now. Join us!

Libraries are for everyone

Since 1998, Stevens County Rural Library District has been encouraging a love of literacy, entertaining and educating residents, as well as providing important reference resources to all. Libraries encourage life-long learning through new skill development, alternate perspectives, and creditable sources. Access to information is the key to success in any community. Libraries don't just bridge the gap for our most vulnerable; they fiercely champion access for everyone, furnish vital resources for our communities, and ignite fresh ideas for all.

PRESERVING THE PAST • FORGING THE FUTURE

Our team of volunteers is ecstatic to announce our upcoming Legacy Project! The Legacy Project involves building a new library in Loon Lake, as well as renovating existing libraries in Northport, Chewelah, and Colville. These enhancements will create modern spaces with meeting rooms, technology, and resources essential for economic development, literacy promotion, and lifelong learning.

We hope you'll join us in reaching our fundraising goal of $1,000,000.

Create Your Legacy

Your support will make a huge impact on Stevens County and leave a legacy for future generations. As a recognition of your support, you will receive the following*:

Titan - $50,000+	These three levels have the option of having their name displayed on a limited number of major projects in the library of their choice. Please call (509) 233-9621 for availability or more information
Cornerstone - $25,000-$49,999
Pillar - $10,000-$24,999
Visionary - $5,000-$9,999	A river rock will be inscribed with the name of the donor/family/organization. These rocks will be prominently placed in the new Loon Lake Library either on the exterior façade or entrance pillars.
Champion - $2,500-$4,999
Advocate - $1,000-$2,499
Partner - $500-$999	An oversized 3D-printed building brick featuring the donor/family/organization's name will be incorporated into sculptures or wall-art and displayed in the 5 larger library branches so that legacies will be recognized throughout Stevens County.
Benefactor - $250-$499
Supporter - $100-$249	Donors are acknowledged on social media pages (Facebook, Instagram, etc.) for the Libraries of Stevens County, the Libraries of Stevens County Foundation, and the Legacy Project, as well as digital displays at all library locations.
Bedrock - $10-$99

John and Sue Poe

Donors receive the recognition incentives for their donation level plus those for the lesser donation levels.

Anonymous donations are also welcomed.

We are so grateful for your support and can't wait for these projects to get started! If your payment spans several years, the LOSC Foundation will provide pledge reminders and updates about how your generous contribution is being used.
